

IFSL YOU Multi-Asset Blend Balanced Fund

Accumulation - GBP

Objective

The objective of the Fund is to increase the value of its investments over a minimum of five years, through a combination of capital growth, which is profit on an investment, and income, which is money paid out from an investment such as interest and dividends. The Fund is actively managed, which means the Investment Manager decides which investments to buy and when, and will invest at least 80% in other collective investment schemes, investment trusts and exchange-traded funds.

Market

March witnessed a backdrop of continued political and economic uncertainty as well as ongoing speculation about the future breadth and magnitude of President Trump's programme of tariffs. This presented a challenging environment for equity markets, with the MSCI All-Country World Index of global equities down -6.2% in Sterling terms.

US equities were particularly hard hit as investors sought to rotate out of these higher valued assets into other cheaper regional equity markets or other asset classes altogether. The S&P 500 index of US equities was down -7.9% in Sterling terms. Large US tech stocks fell even further with the NASDAQ 100 Index down -9.9%, also in Sterling terms, as concerns grew that lofty expectations about future spend on Artificial Intelligence infrastructure may be too optimistic.

Continuing the pattern of relative outperformance of non-US markets, other regional equity markets fared somewhat better but were generally also down in Sterling terms. The MSCI Japan was down -2.1% as the Bank of Japan held interest rates at 0.5% despite continued encouraging signs of healthy wage growth. More evidence that the Chinese government is serious about supporting its leading private enterprises as well as its consumers to start spending again, helped the MSCI China to a +2.0% rise in local currency terms although those gains were wiped out for Sterling investors by the relative weakness in the Chinese Renminbi.

European news was dominated by new German Chancellor, Friedrich Merz, announcing the creation of a €500 billion infrastructure fund, emphasising the need for Germany to rearm and exempting defence and security spending above 1% of GDP from deficit limits. Although European equities initially reacted positively to this groundbreaking loosening of German fiscal policy, the broader risk off sentiment eventually hit Europe as well and the MSCI Europe ex-UK Index ended the month down -2.9% in Sterling terms. The UK equity market also fell, with the FTSE All Share Index down -2.3% over the month.

Away from equities, the Bloomberg Global Aggregate index of high quality global bonds fell -0.4% in GBP Hedged terms. Commodity markets were strong with the Bloomberg Commodity Index up +3.9% in GBP Hedged terms, boosted by the continued strength in safe haven assets like gold.

Performance

In March, your Fund returned -1.7%, outperforming its IA sector comparator which was down -1.9%. Since its launch on 22nd July 2019, the Fund has generated cumulative returns of +26.7%, approximately 10% ahead of its IA sector comparator.

With both equities and bonds in negative territory, it was the Fund's tactical exposures within Fixed Income as well as differentiated exposures within Absolute Return and Real Assets that helped provide welcome diversification benefits over the month.

Within the Fixed Income component, what was particularly helpful was the holding in the Morgan Stanley Emerging Market Local Income Fund which was up +0.8% over March. However, this was offset by the exposure to long-dated US Treasuries via the iShares 20+ Year US Treasury ETF that fell -0.9%.

Within the Absolute Return component, the Fulcrum Thematic Equity Market Neutral Fund (+2.8%) continued to deliver positive returns independent of market direction, and the Pacific G10 Macro Rates Fund (+0.4%) clocked up its tenth positive month in the last twelve. The Sanlam Multi Strategy Fund, offset some of this with a -1.4% return, although given this strategy has some equity exposure, that was not entirely unexpected.

The other stand out performers in the diversifying components were the Clearbridge Global Infrastructure Income Fund (+3.1%) and the AQR Managed Futures Fund (+1.7%), the latter's strategy we like as it tends to benefit from trending markets irrespective of whether they are going up or down. The Fund's commodity exposure, gained through the UBS BCOM CMCI ETF was also helpful, gaining +3.7% over the month.

Unsurprisingly, most of the pain came in the equity component this month, although the Fund's strategy of always maintaining broad diversification across different regions and styles was undoubtedly helpful. In the US, the Amundi Russell 1000 Growth ETF fell -10.7% and the Neuberger Berman US Small Cap Value Fund fell -9.3% and in Europe, the BlackRock Continental European Fund fell -9.2%. Although still down -4.0%, the Pzena Global Value Fund significantly outperformed its global equity index comparator. The Skerryvore Global Emerging Markets Fund's -0.2% return, also represented solid capital preservation in a challenging market environment.
